Pentecost

The word Pentecost is Greek, meaning "50th day." Fifty days after Easter Sunday, we celebrate the coming of the Holy Spirit upon the Apostles and their followers, beginning their Earthly ministry to make disciples of all nations. Pentecost is also a Jewish holiday, marking the end of Passover and celebrating the gift of the law to Moses at Mt. Sinai. That day, fire came upon the whole mountain and, although all the people were invited, they were afraid and Moses alone went in their place.

At Pentecost, the Apostles and their followers, Jews from all over the world were gathered with Peter and the Eleven Apostles in a room. At this time, a great wind blew and a flame appeared as a tongue of fire, which split itself into many individual flames above the heads of all those present and fell on each and every person. The Holy Spirit came upon these people and each began to speak in tongues and, despite the fact many had no common language, they were perfectly able to understand one another. Others accused those speaking in tongues of being drunk, but Peter arose and addressed the crowd, explaining that this phenomenon was not intoxication, but rather this was the work of the Holy Spirit prophesized in the scripture. Peter then called all those present to be baptized and about 3,000 people were baptized that day.

The Holy Spirit still works among us today: leading us, prompting us, breaking down language barriers, and planting joy, peace, and kindness into our hearts and lives. We turn once again, like the disciples of old, and say "Come Holy Spirit, enkindle in us the fire of your love". The symbols of Pentecost are the flame, wind, and dove, representing the Holy Spirit. The color of Pentecost is red. The priest wears red vestments on this day. Red, when worn in liturgy, symbolizes fire, blood, and love. Parishioners are also invited to wear red on this day. Red decorations as well as celebrations are appropriate.

Blessings,
Fr. Joe
